Golden Autumn — the Mossacks, "pratties" as the natives call them, a rugged labyrinth of mounds and rocks covered with a rich vegetation of oaks, ashes and rowans, and ablaze with colour in the autumn. The rocky and tor-crowned hills and the picturesque scenery at every turn in the autumn the Mossacks—Celtic "The Bristly Country"—is seen at its best.

Dear Auntie,
Arrived home safely. Shortly after 9 pm. When you have made your mackintosh will you take Mother some to Mrs. Brown's. Said she would like some too. I will let you know when I want some. Much better in the south. Every one sends their love to all. Hope you are quite well. Love from
Sallie
